STRUCTURED EXPERIENCE LABORATORY

Introduction:

The Structured Experience Laboratory provides the opportunity of ‘learning by doing’ in a safe environment of the classroom. This environment, that is a laboratory, wherein learners and facilitators meet jointly to experience certain intervention skills, needs to be amongst the most non-threatening methods of teaming, especially for beginners. This learning opportunity is conducted through a game/form, or other simulated exercises. Structured experience are directed to helping the learners enhance their awareness about self and others to aid conscious use of intervention tools.

Objectives

• Understanding of situations in the world of reality through experiencing situations in a laboratory setting, using imagination and fantasy.
• Reflect over one's own behaviour, and its effect on self and others.
• Observe others’ behaviour and with the help of the facilitator, understand the same.
• Express feelings and appropriate reaction/response to others’ feelings.
• Confront situations wherein-conflicts, decision-making and reflections are necessary.
• Observe self, recognize own strengths and limitations, and also observe behaviour patterns that call for change.

Specific objectives for orientation to the initial phase in social work practice learning like at the beginning of first year of the U.G. programme.

• Acquire beginning skills to establish relationship with clients and client groups by participating in games for systematic observation, listening, verbal communication and understanding non-verbal messages-body language, empathy and like skills.
• Develop better understanding of one another through group processes.
• Enhancing self-awareness in relationship to professional role.
• Reinforcing professional values.

(a). Outcome of Learning

The learners’ ability enhances to adapt, be open to experience, discuss and share this learning.

(b) Facilitators competencies

It is necessary that facilitators undergo these experiences each year prior to taking on the role of being facilitators.

Facilitator's competence must reflect in the ability to:

• Be open to learning through involvement in this experience. Understand self and role of a facilitator.
• Provide emotional and social support to learners.
• Foresee consequences.
• Aid learning through reflection and discussion, and understand its application.
• Continually look for opportunities to maximize learner involvement and aid exchange of experiences to help the learners grow.
• Be prepared and organized for sessions.
• Understand that process and goals are both equally important for such experiences.
• Recognize signs of learner's growth and integrate this in the structured experiences.
• Treat all participants with respect, and expect mutual respect from them and among them. Interest and ability to interact by itself is not enough, complete involvement and awareness of the process as ‘here and now’ is necessary.

(c) Facilitator Readiness

Taking on the role of a facilitator/resource person for experiential laboratory sessions calls for readiness of the persons concerned. This readiness is behaviorally seen as:
• Willingness coupled with desire and motivation to be a facilitator.
• Willingness to come to facilitator practice sessions.
• Openness as a facilitator learner to discuss the experience and learn new skills.
• Ability to recognize and appreciate one's own growth and recognize the surfacing the incomplete gestalt (unfinished business-others’ needs arising in the mind) while aiding others learning, and willingness to work on findings about self
• Understanding one's own needs, allow interaction among the learners, and with no latent desire to interrupt learners during the —flow of communication"
  • i. Observe and sense stress being generated by unresolved feelings of individual learners.
  ii. Ability to help such learners.

Note for faculty—usually these experiences are designed at the beginning of the year, same phase as the visits to various settings.
